364 - J	RURAL & SMALL TOWN CHURCH CONFERENCE: As Great Commission Congregations	Rural and small town churches can believe big, think globally, and act as mission-driven congregations. Moving beyond maintenance in evangelism, mutual care, mind-set, and in support of the world mission. Rev. Don Taylor - Many factors create conflict and stress in rural communities: weather, markets and computers, the escalating costs of inputs and machinery, traditional responsibilities of a farm wife vs. the need for dual income, multi-generational farming in a changing world. In addition, there can be parish stress and corporate pain. Stress can lead to abusive behavior. God's Word speaks to the pain of individuals, families and congregations in rural/small town America. Where there is brokenness and conflict, God's people, impacted by His living Word, form a caring community, and serve as those who help bring about wholeness in a fractured world.
